It is true that mas was not celebrated at the American meeting in our city. The editor of the Democrat thinks the mission a very important one. Probably our opponents, taught by the disastrous failure of their late attempt to get up a large gathering at Lexington, will underske to increase the attractions of their rext meeting by advertising that grand mass will be celebrated upon the occasion. We may say, not irreverently, that it would be their only way of reasing a host.

We have no doubt that such a sum of money will do more than the eloquence of a dozen such fellows.
